Thinking Skills at Liwara

We continue our four year association with London based Graham Watts, an internationally recognised professional developer of Thinking Skills. Graham worked with the whole school staff on our Professional Development day to ‘grow’ our Liwara School Thinking Curriculum further as well as give us information on how the brain works and the impacts this has for us as learners.

His work with us is assisting us to grow something really special that we can use every day to make a difference to our students and ourselves. The exposure to a variety of thinker’s tools will allow us to up skill our students so that they will be able to select and deploy a range of thinking skills and tools throughout their learning journey.

Clare Magee

REACH Coordinator